MY GIFT TO YOU · 10 MINUTES

Reset Routine for Tired Days

for the evenings when you've given everything for .....

A LETTER FOR YOU

Hi lovely

Yes, I mean you, reading this at the end of a long day.

I know that feeling. The day is over, everyone got what they needed from you, and there is nothing left for you. Not even the energy to decide what would actually be good for you.

That's why this isn't a workout or anything you have to do well. These are ten quiet minutes that belong only to you. You'll breathe, light a candle, let one thing go, wrap your hands around something warm and write a few honest lines.

Some evenings it will feel like a lot, others like nothing at all. Both are completely okay.

WHAT'S INSIDE

Step 1 · Arrive with your breath
2 minutes

Step 2 · A little ritual to let go
3 minutes

Step 3 · Golden moon milk
while it warms up

Step 4 · A few honest lines
3 minutes

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

What you need

That's really all it takes.

Your little reset corner

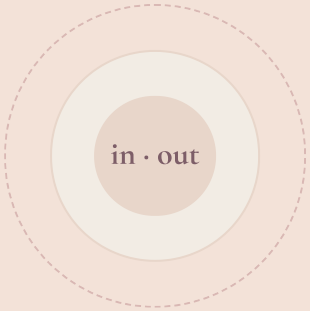

- [ ] a quiet corner
- [ ] a blanket
- [ ] a candle
- [ ] a small piece of paper
- [ ] a pen
- [ ] your favourite cup
- [ ] permission to take ten minutes for yourself

My tip for you

Gather everything in a little basket once, so it's ready to grab. Then on tired evenings there is nothing left to gather, and the first step is almost done.

STEP ONE · 2 MINUTES

Arrive with your breath

BREATHWORK

A longer exhale

in 4 · out 6

Sit or lie down so your shoulders can drop. Place one hand on your belly and one on your chest.

1. Breathe in through your nose and slowly count to four.
2. Breathe out through your mouth while you count to six, as if you were fogging up a window.
3. Do this about ten times. As you breathe in, let your belly rise first, and let every exhale take a little more of the day with it.

GOOD TO KNOW

Why a long exhale helps

When you breathe out longer than you breathe in, you signal to your nervous system that there is no danger. The part responsible for rest and recovery can take over, your heartbeat slows and your shoulders let go. A longer exhale tells your body: the day is over, you're safe now.

STEP TWO · 3 MINUTES

A little ritual to let go

1. Light a candle and gaze into the flame for a few breaths.
2. On a small piece of paper, write down one thing that's allowed to go tonight. A worry, something someone said, the pressure to get everything done.
3. Fold it twice, hold it in your hands and quietly say the words below.
4. Put the paper aside, throw it away tomorrow morning, and blow out the candle when you're ready.

"You can go now."

My tip for you

If nothing comes to mind, simply write "today" on the paper. A whole day is allowed to go, too.

STEP THREE · WHILE IT WARMS UP

Golden Moon Milk

My evening hug in a cup.

Golden Moon Milk

5 minutes · Serves: 1 cup

INGREDIENTS

- 250 ml oat milk, or any milk you like
- ½ tsp turmeric
- ½ tsp cinnamon
- a pinch each of ground ginger and black pepper
- 1 tsp honey or maple syrup

METHOD

1. Warm the milk gently in a small pot.
2. Whisk in the spices and let the milk steep for a few minutes without letting it boil.
3. Sweeten it at the end, pour it into your favourite cup and hold it with both hands while you write.

No turmeric at home? Warm milk with cinnamon and honey is just as cosy.

STEP FOUR · 3 MINUTES

A few honest lines

There are no right answers. Write the first thing that comes up, even if it's just one word.

What drained me today?

What would refill me?

One small thing I'll do just for me tomorrow:

My reset evenings this week

	Mon	Tue	Wed	Thu	Fri	Sat	Sun
Breath	○	○	○	○	○	○	○
Letting go	○	○	○	○	○	○	○
Something warm	○	○	○	○	○	○	○
A few lines	○	○	○	○	○	○	○

TAKE THIS WITH YOU

For tonight

I am allowed to rest. And I'm allowed to want more.

Say it out loud before you fall asleep, or write it on a note for your mirror.

the real me ♡

Dear wild heart,

I'm Viv. I live in the Austrian mountains with my husband and our four kids, I run a little pottery studio and I teach movement. And I know those evenings, the ones where you've given everything and wonder where the real you went in all of it.

That's exactly why the Wild Hearts Collective exists: so you never forget that you matter too, even when you're always there for everyone else and holding it all together. Come and join us in our free community channel. I would truly love to meet you there.
