

THE WILD HEARTS COLLECTIVE

Reset Routine for Tired Days

for the evenings you gave everything away. ♡

10 minutes · just for you · by Viv

Hey you,

yes, you, reading this at the end of a long day.

I know that feeling. The day is over, everyone got what they needed from you, and there is nothing left for yourself. Not even the energy to decide what would actually be good for you.

me, on a slow day

That's why this isn't a workout, and nothing you have to do well. These are ten quiet minutes that belong only to you. You'll breathe, light a candle, let one thing go, wrap your hands around something warm and write a few honest lines.

Some evenings it will feel like a lot. Some evenings like nothing at all. Both are completely okay.

what you need:

a quiet corner · a blanket · a candle · a small piece of paper · a pen · and permission to take ten minutes for yourself

STEP ONE · 2 MINUTES

Arrive with your breath

Sit or lie down so your shoulders can drop. One hand on your belly, one on your chest.

1. Breathe in through your nose and slowly count to four.
2. Breathe out through your mouth while you count to six, as if you were fogging up a window.
3. Do this about ten times. Let your belly rise first, and let every exhale take a little more of the day with it.

psst... a longer exhale tells your body: the day is over. you're safe now.

STEP TWO · 3 MINUTES

A little ritual to let go

1. Light a candle and look into the flame for a few breaths.
2. Write one thing on a small piece of paper that may leave you tonight. A worry, something someone said, the pressure to get everything done.
3. Fold it twice, hold it in your hands and say quietly:

"You may go now."

4. Put the paper aside, throw it away tomorrow morning, and blow out the candle when you're ready.

STEP THREE · WHILE IT WARMS

Golden Moon Milk

my evening hug in a cup

for one cup

250 ml oat milk, or any milk you like ½ tsp turmeric · ½ tsp cinnamon
a pinch of ginger and black pepper
1 tsp honey or maple syrup

Warm the milk gently in a small pot, whisk in the spices and let it steam for a few minutes without boiling. Sweeten it at the end, pour it into your favourite cup and hold it with both hands while you write.

no turmeric at home? warm milk with cinnamon and honey is just as cosy.

STEP FOUR · 3 MINUTES

A few honest lines

What drained me today, and what would refill me?

One small thing I'll do just for me tomorrow:

There are no right answers. Write the first thing that comes up, even if it's just one word.

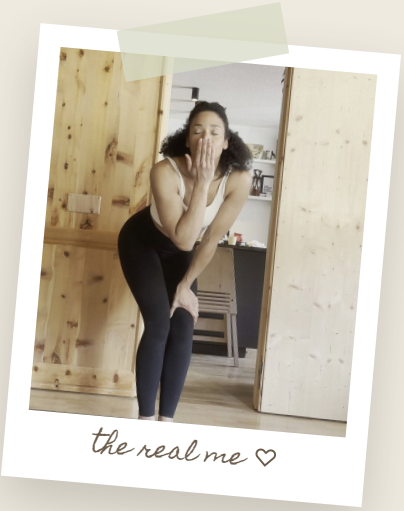

TAKE THIS WITH YOU

I am allowed to rest.

and I'm allowed to want more.

Say it out loud before you fall asleep,
or write it on a note for your mirror.

Dear wild heart,

I'm Viv. I live in the Austrian mountains with my husband and our four kids, I run a little pottery studio and I teach movement.

And I know those evenings. The ones where you've given everything and wonder where you went in all of it.

That's exactly why the Wild Hearts Collective exists. So you never forget that you are a whole person too, even when you're always there for everyone else and holding it all together.

The Wild Hearts Collective is yours, a place where you don't get lost. Come and join us in our free community channel. I would truly love to meet you there.

we matter. we are here. and we are seen. ♡

with love, Viv

Join us: moveciamovement.com · @movementwithviv